

HER BATH

Designer: Kathie Missett, Allied Member ASID

Dusty blues and white with accents of black recall the 1920s Art Deco era when the house was built. Kathie Missett participated in her first Showcase house as a student last year. Now she's out on her own as a designer concocting a bath where the woman of the house can soak and enjoy a good book.

Due to the historic designation of the house, the original wall tiles, built-in cabinet and vanity mirror remain intact. A new light and airy feeling is created with the addition of a custom shower curtain, new white marble floor bordered in black granite and a new pedestal sink. Existing tile and woodwork are painted to coordinate with the flooring.

Clean lines and geometric shapes make for a classy space that still keeps the integrity of the home's period.
